

TERMS AND CONDITIONS

These terms describe how you use our website and services. When you work with us or use our site, you agree to follow these terms.

Use of Our Website

You use this website for lawful purposes only. You do not interfere with security, attempt unauthorized access, or disrupt operations.

Service Agreements

Before we start a project, we provide a clear proposal outlining scope, timelines, deliverables, and pricing. Work begins after approval and payment of the required deposit. Additional revisions outside the agreed scope require extra time and billing.

Project Responsibilities

We handle design, development, testing, and delivery according to the approved proposal. You provide accurate information, timely feedback, and required content such as text, images, and branding materials. Delays in feedback may affect timelines.

Payments

Payments are made according to the schedule in the proposal. Late payments pause project work until the balance is settled. Final deliverables are handed over once payments are complete.

Intellectual Property

We assign ownership of the final website files and designs to you after full payment. We retain ownership of internal tools, frameworks, code snippets, and assets we use for production. We reserve the right to display completed work in our portfolio unless you request removal.

Use of Your Content

You confirm that all content you provide is legal and does not infringe on any rights. You give us permission to use your content for the purpose of building and delivering your project.

Third-Party Tools

Some features require integration with external platforms such as hosting providers, analytics tools, or payment systems. We are not responsible for issues that arise from third-party failures or policy changes.

Liability

We focus on delivering quality work and secure solutions, but we do not guarantee uninterrupted website operation or complete protection from cyber threats. We are not liable for losses resulting from downtime, technical issues, misuse, or unauthorized access beyond our control.

Account Termination

We reserve the right to restrict website access or terminate service relationships if users violate these terms or engage in harmful behavior.

Changes to These Terms

We update these terms when needed. Continued use of our website or services means you accept any updates.
